Hough taken to hospital after dance

Cost of dressing for success: $150K

POLITICS Dressing up the self-styled hockey mom cost the Republican National Committee more than $150,000.

Small potatoes in a big election, Republican officials said, after trips to Saks Fifth Avenue in New York and St. Louis and Neiman Marcus in Minneapolis for Republican vice-presidential candidate Sarah Palin were uncovered by politico.com, a U.S. political website.

The revelation capped a tough 24 hours for the prospective vice-president, who is trying to appeal to the "average American." In addition, there are published reports that Palin charged Alaska taxpayers more than $21,000 for airfare and hotel accommodation so her children could travel with her to events.

Palin's shopping spree, according to politico.com:

- ◆ $49,425.74 — Saks Fifth Avenue in St. Louis and New York
- ◆ $75,062.63 — Two shopping trips to Neiman Marcus in Minneapolis
- ◆ $4,716.49 — Hair and makeup through September
- ◆ $5,102.71 — Payment to Bloomingdale's New York
- ◆ $789.72 — Payment to Barney's New York
- ◆ $9,447.71 — Total of three payments to Macy's in Minneapolis
- ◆ $196 — Two purchases at Pacifier, a baby store
- ◆ $4,902.45 — Payment to Atelier, a high-class shopping destination for men.

Tax cuts announced

JEFF HODSON
jeff.hodson@metronews.ca

B.C. will cut personal income taxes and increase spending in capital infrastructure while reining in avoidable government spending to keep the province's economy sailing forward amid ebbing world economic tides, Premier Gordon Campbell announced yesterday.

"The global economic crisis is not someone else's problem, it's all of our problem," said Campbell during a live televised address. "Our province is directly impacted by events beyond our control."

New Democrat Leader Carole James slammed the plan, calling it a "hodgepodge" of ideas that missed the "biggest tax of all," Campbell's carbon tax.

In all, the premier announced nine initiatives totalling $485 million over three years — to boost economic competitiveness. The legislature will be recalled Nov. 20 to implement the plan.

It includes:

- ◆ Accelerated tax relief for small businesses.
- ◆ A school property tax rebate for light and heavy in-

'Deficit-free zone'

- ◆ Unlike Ontario, which announced yesterday it would run a $500-million deficit, Campbell said B.C. had worked hard to be a "deficit-free zone" and would continue that way.

dusty.

- ◆ A 33 per cent reduction in ferry fares for December and January and the restoration of all ferry service levels for all routes.
- ◆ Unlimited deposit protection for credit unions.
- ◆ A new private-sector pension for British

Columbians without access to pension plans.

However, the plan with perhaps the most impact on wallets is a personal income tax cut of five per cent, retroactive to the start of 2008.

The cut, which will put $144 million into taxpayers' hands, includes the two per cent cut introduced this summer with Campbell's carbon tax as well as a further three per cent reduction planned for January.

Indie-rockers play free for Insite today

CLINIC Vancouver's supervised injection site is getting some high-profile backing today by Canadian indie-rockers Bedouin Soundclash, who are playing a free concert outside Insite to support the clinic.

The event, Play Music Not Politics, starts at 5:30 p.m. with a live DJ and free food. The band steps behind the mic at 6:30 p.m. Jay Malinowski, the Juno Award-winning group's lead singer and guitarist, said he contacted Insite about doing a concert because he wanted to show support for the clinic's initiatives.

"I grew up in Vancouver ... and I think (Insite) is a really positive thing," Malinowski told Metro yesterday.

"Seeing how the health minister and Stephen Harper have ignored the medical evidence that suggests (Insite users) are improving their lives and stopping the spread of disease is ... small-minded."

Mark Townsend, executive director of Portland Hotel Society, which operates Insite, said it helps the clinic's cause to have a name like the Bedouin Soundclash backing the program.

"Everything helps," he added. "From the people writing a letter to the prime minister, to someone who gives a donation of $20."

After the free concert, Bedouin Soundclash is performing at the Commodore Ballroom.

Boy faces charges after seawall fall

A 14-year-old Vancouver boy is under arrest and facing charges after allegedly pushing a 40-year-old man over the seawall near Harbour Green Park in Stanley Park.

The man suffered cuts but no broken bones in the roughly two-metre fall at about 8:20 p.m. on Tuesday. Witnesses heard an altercation between the man and eight others — three were adults from Surrey and five were youth from Burnaby and Vancouver — but police don't know what they were arguing about.

The suspects scattered, but were all later picked up and interviewed by police. A 16-year-old Burnaby girl was initially arrested. It is not clear if the suspects knew each other.

Two female drivers tailed in Vancouver

Police say incidents may be attempted carjackings

MARIA COOTAUCO
for Metro Vancouver

Police yesterday said they are investigating two reports of lone women drivers being followed Tuesday morning as they drove their BMWs in downtown Vancouver.

One woman was driving in the area of 41st Avenue and Oak Street at about 2:10 a.m. when she noticed a silver Sunfire following her. After making four turns and still being trailed by the car, she got on her phone and began driving toward the Cambie Street police station.

The driver turned off when a taxi came between the two cars.

A second woman was rear-ended by a dark minivan in the 1000-block of West King Edward Street at about 6:10 a.m.

The woman stayed in her car and kept the doors locked as the man walked up to the car. When the woman said she had called police, the man drove away.

Investigators later found that the van was sporting stolen licence plates.

Police are investigating the incidents as possible carjackings or robberies.

Loonie at 3-year low

The Canadian dollar was whacked to its lowest level versus the American dollar in more than three years yesterday, closing below 80 cents US.

"Stand out of the way of this freight train," said Steve Butler, director of foreign exchange at Scotia Capital. "You just cannot call an end to this move at this moment or a bottom for the Canadian dollar."

Butler added the speed and depth of the Canadian dollar's fall surprised him, but that the turbulence in the market has been longer and more severe than anyone had anticipated.

On the heels of its 17.5 per cent surge last year, when it rose above the U.S. dollar for the first time in more than 30 years, the Canadian dollar is now down 21 per cent this year.

It closed yesterday at 79.70 cents US.

While, in theory, this may sound like good news for Canada's tourism industry — it would be cheaper for Americans and others to vacation here — the looming global recession is likely to keep the bulk of those would-be travellers at home.

Even Canada's exporters, who usually find more buyers when our dollar is lower, are expecting to have trouble finding customers at any price.

"Many companies are reporting new orders are falling right off. A lot of that's due to the credit problems," Jay Myers, president of the Canadian Manufacturers and Exporters, said yesterday.

Critical time for Liberals

Home&Abroad

Andrew Cohen

Canada & world insight

Conventional wisdom holds that the Liberal Party of Canada, post-election, will sink into a long season of despair, division and decline. Not so fast.

It won't help that the proud Stéphane Dion — who did not deserve the character assassination he has stoically endured — will stay on until a leadership convention. It means he will be hit by friendly fire as his successors rush to distance themselves from his leadership and his losing policies, such as the Green Shift.

But the good news for the Liberals is that they have strong contenders, as strong as they have had since 1968, when they chose Pierre Trudeau, or since 1984, when they chose John Turner. Unlike the coronations of 1990 and 2003, which produced Jean Chrétien and Paul Martin on the first ballot, this contest will be more open.

For a party desperate to renew itself, this is critical. The more candidates, the broader the process.

This time, the field will be broader and deeper than in 2006. That's because the leading contenders are stronger.

Michael Ignatieff, the front-runner last time, has sat in Parliament since February 2006. As deputy leader, he has performed with style and eloquence. If the rap against him was political inexperience, it is no longer.

Bob Rae, his rival, has run and won a seat as a Liberal. The rap against him is that he was a New Democrat who was an ineffective premier of deficit-ridden Ontario. He cannot erase his past — the Conservatives won't let him — but he will run as someone who is as effective in opposition as in power.

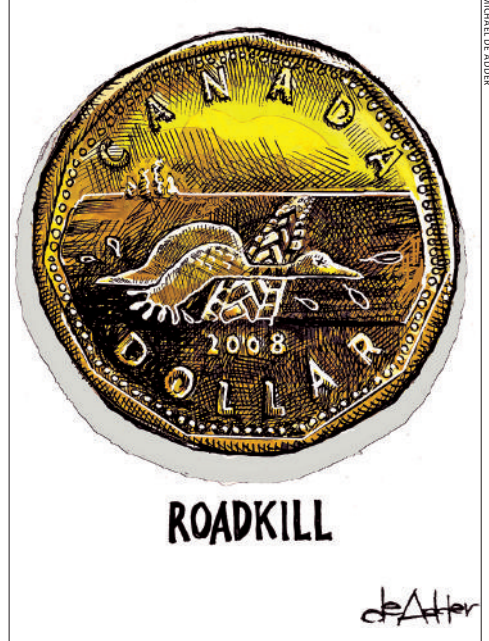

John Manley and Frank McKenna, should they run, bring the quality of elder statesmen, yet are young enough to renew the party.

All are bilingual, experienced, serious players. Stephen Harper, take note.

The rest of the field? Gerard Kennedy and Martha Hall Findlay may run again, though other than having been elected, neither appears stronger than two years ago. Dominique LeBlanc may run, and so might Denis Coderre, but it's not a francophone's turn this time.

Of course, the Liberal malaise runs deeper than leadership. They need money, ideas and reorganization. Contrary to popular belief, though, this party is not over.

Andrew Cohen, a professor and journalist, is the author of Extraordinary Canadians: Lester B. Pearson.

Looking at the Canucks' bright side

TheHockeyNews

reetings from The Hockey News. We've been asked to provide a weekly "view from afar" column on the Canucks, which, given the godforsaken location of our head office — Toronto — shouldn't be too difficult.

So, your 2008-09 Vancouver Canucks. Northwest Division champs or Western Conference chumps? Stanley Cup contenders or play-off pretenders? It's impossible to know at this stage of the season, but we can be absolutely certain of two things: one, Vancouver can't be scored upon, not ever, not with Roberto Luongo in net; and, two, Vancouver can't score, not ever, not with the likes of Alex Burrows and Steve Bernier leading the way.

That's why the Canucks have surrendered, uh, 25 goals in their first seven games (about three-and-a-half per contest). And that's why they've scored 22 times, led by Ryan Kesler and Burrows with three goals apiece. (Bernier, Pavol Demitra and rookie Rick Rypien — is anyone calling him "The Ripper" yet? — each have chipped in with two goals, as have both of the Sedin twins).

Add it all up, and it's all upside-down in Vancouver, a Bizarro World that would make Seinfeld proud (if he knew anything about hockey). Luongo can't stop the puck, and the secondary scorers — who weren't supposed to score at all, if you believed the pre-season naysayers — can't stop putting the puck in the net.

Through it all, the Canucks have opened the season with a 3-4-0 mark, which is probably right around where they would've been if they were playing their traditional no-goals-for, no-goals-against style.

Despite their sub-.500 record, the fact the Canucks are scoring — more importantly, the fact it's not just Henrik and Daniel doing the damage — is a very good sign in Vancouver. Luongo, of course, will come around. It's not like he's doing that badly — he did shut out Calgary in the season opener, a 6-0 pounding which has been Vancouver's only home game to this point — but we're used to seeing a lot better than a 3.39 goals-against average and .886 save percentage out of Luongo. The question is, well, the same as it was before: Can the Canucks' secondary scorers provide enough offence behind the top line of Two-Sedins-And-Another-Guy? So far, the view from afar says they can.

Nothing beats free

Word-of-mouth advertising great for small businesses

When Anne Day launched her business, Company of Women (companyofwomen.ca), five years ago, she admits she spent a "fortune" on advertising and promotion.

In fact, in the first year, about 50 per cent of her budget went to newspaper ads, and promotional items such as post-it notes bearing the company logo, as well as gifts for renewing members.

Then she discovered something: "If women like something, they tell their friends about it."

So instead of spending all her marketing money on advertising, she began to focus on connecting with other women's networks to promote her business, and on delivering a "quality experience, one they'll remember."

"Then they tell their friends, who tell other people," she says, likening it to the famous Breck hair shampoo commercial: "I told two friends, and they told two friends, and so on, and so on, and..."

In fact, Day believes word of mouth is responsible for 75-80 per cent of her company's growth, which now has 380 annual members, with many more attending a much-expanded roster of breakfast, lunch and dinner meetings.

"By maintaining your standards and constantly asking what your customers want — and listening to them," you can deliver a product that your customers will talk about, she says.

And the value of that is apparently priceless, in the advertising world.

"Word of mouth (is) the most powerful stimulus for marketing. It beats just about everything else," says Knud Jensen, a professor specializing in small business strategies and entrepreneurship at Ryerson University's Ted Rogers School of Management.

That's because it's not paid for like an advertisement, so there is more of a trust level with it, he says. "For small companies" — with small budgets — "this is even more important," he says.

So how do you get the word out?

One way is to follow the old adage that everyone in your company is a "marketing person," says Jensen. "Think about an accounting person who doesn't see their role as a marketer, but they can still create issues with the suppliers or customers by not being nice or being curt."

Second is managing your reputation," he says. "We buy from companies that we trust."

But how do you get the process started?

"If you're a small company, your financial resources are small," notes Jensen. "You can't blow a million on communications." METRO NEWS SERVICES

Dreaming of the big picture

UrbanDweller

Carlyn Yandle

carlyn.yandle@metronews.ca

I have a dream that all the stuff we buy for our homes is designed and made locally, out of local materials and ingredients from nearby farms instead of far-off nations, for our local esthetic.

I dream of furniture made of wood from our forests, hardware from local manufacturers, and wool and hides from animals that grew up around here.

Nothing against China, but I'd like to support a wide range of industries that reduces shipping and encourages regional identity. It's a big dream, but this week I caught a glimpse of possibility at the current show in the main space at Emily Carr University of Art and Design, at Granville Island.

The exhibit is a retrospective of innovative furnishings, household items and toys created by the latest graduating design students, all served up on a long table decked out with wine glasses, candles and mismatched chairs tucked into the white tablecloth.

The layout conveys a design feast for the eyes, but to me it's dishing out hope for something other than the giant tsunami of the usual plastic crap from halfway around the world as featured in big-box retailers. Instead, here elegant lamps of birch veneer resemble seashells and whimsical rocking toys look like sculpture. Small flat packs of thin plywood unfold into voluptuous vessels, and models of alternative dwelling construction suggest maximum use for the minimum amount of materials. The entire spread engages the viewer, challenging the usual understanding of lamp or toy or bowl or house. It's all about thinking differently about materials and environmental ethics.

Multifunctional furniture for small urban spaces by Emily Carr's future designers Emily Lin, David Cha and Michael Johnson.

The show is also further example of what I view as a Pacific Rim esthetic. Due in part to trans-Pacific migration, Vancouver has become more akin to the design sensibilities of other Pacific Coasts than the rest of Canada. From Sapporo to Singapore to Sydney to San Francisco, we share a psychological connection to our Rim-side mountainous topography and are drawn to design that reflects and reacts to our watery part of the world. We build for the same mild, wet conditions.

Bright colours that dance in the deserts look downright gaudy here, competing with our cool-blue, grey-green physical environment while the stone and brick foundation of dry-cold Canada leaves us clammy and bone-damp. We need light, breathable wood, sleek, understated design and natural texture — just what this school's newest generation of mostly-Pacific Rim designers have laid out on the table.

Assignment-selling can be complicated

As the real estate market continues to soften in the approach of a potential recession, more and more purchasers of pre-built condominiums are contemplating the idea of selling their contracts. This is called the selling of an assignment and can be a more complicated venture than most people assume, with potential legal consequences.

Essentially the key difference between selling a property and selling an assignment is that with one comes the transfer of land and with the other comes a contract giving the right to complete on a property. It is for this reason that it is always advised you use both a realtor and a real estate lawyer to assist you through the process. These professionals will have access to contracts drafted specifically to deal with the complexities of selling and buying assignments.

One of the risks involved is the often misguided notion that once you sell your contract you are no longer liable to the developer. What is important to note is that if the new buyer does not complete on the property, the developer retains the right to seek legal action against the original purchaser. To protect yourself, you can request a release from the developer so that you will not be legally responsible to pay should the "assignee" (individual who purchased the assignment) not be able to complete. While most developers will not grant this request, it is worth asking.

It is also important to know that a developer's permission is usually required to sell an assignment and that some developers charge for it. With all the variables, you should really do your homework. It is not a simple sale and without the help of professionals, you can open yourself up to consequences.

Boneless pork shoulder is sometimes called Boston butt.

Tender, loving cooking

À la carte

Barb Holland

Metro Food Writer

Slow cookers are nice to come home to — and the ideal appliance for braising (cooking low and slow in liquid) less tender but flavourful cuts of meat. A pork shoulder roast is a perfect case in point — slow cooking tenderizes the meat such that it shreds easily. Aha — pulled pork. This recipe requires a little planning to make it at least a day ahead. I often let the slow cooker cook it overnight, then cool and refrigerate it during the day. Serve on onion buns with coleslaw.

Pulled Pork

An easy meal that is popu-

While slow cooker cookbooks would have you cooking everything in the slow cooker, in my opinion, it is best for braising less tender cuts of meat. So stews, chili, pot roasts and lamb shanks are ideal for the slow cooker — and, of course, a deliciously soft pulled pork sandwich.

lar with kids and adults alike (and makes great leftovers). Makes 6 servings.

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 lb (1 kg) boneless pork

shoulder roast, remove any excess fat

- 2 tbsp (30 mL) prepared mustard
- 6 soft buns
- Coleslaw

Dry Rub:

- 1 tbsp (15 mL) each granulated sugar and paprika
- 1-1/2 tsp (7 mL) each brown sugar, ground cumin, chili powder and black pepper
- 1/2 tsp (2 mL) each salt and cayenne
- 2 onions, halved and thinly sliced
- 1/2 cup (125 mL) smoky barbecue sauce

METHOD:

Spread mustard over pork. Make rub mixture by combining sugar, paprika, brown sugar, cumin, chili powder, pepper, salt and cayenne. Pat evenly over pork. Place in slow cooker, top with onions and barbecue sauce. Cook, covered on LOW for 8 to 10 hours or until very tender.

Transfer pork to a cutting board and cool slightly. Using two forks, shred meat, discarding any fat. Cool, then cover and refrigerate. Put the cooking liquid in a tall bowl, cool then refrigerate to solidify fat. Remove fat and transfer liquid to a saucepan. Bring to a boil and cook to reduce and thicken it. (Or blend a little cornstarch with cold water, whisk into cooking liquid and bring to a boil, whisking constantly, until thickened into a sauce.) Add meat to sauce and heat until warmed through. Serve on buns.

Crab Cakes

For recipes for Grilled Artichokes, Tomato Salsa with Caper mayonnaise to accompany these crab cakes, visit metronews.ca.

INGREDIENTS:

- 2 tbsp olive oil, divided
- 1/2 medium onion, finely chopped
- 1 stalk celery, finely chopped
- 2 tbsp white wine
- 1 1/2 lbs lump crab meat, drained and picked over
- 1 Granny Smith apple, peeled and grated
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup finely chopped chives
- 2 tbsp finely chopped tarragon
- 1/2 tsp cayenne
- 1 egg yolk
- 1 cup breadcrumbs, divided

METHOD:

Preheat oven to 375 F

In a skillet, heat 1 tbsp olive oil over low heat. Add onions and celery and cook gently for 3-4 minutes, or until vegetables are soft and translucent.

Add white wine and cook slowly over medium heat, covered, until vegetables are tender. Remove from heat and let mixture cool. In a large bowl, mix crabmeat, apple, mayonnaise, sour cream, chives, tarragon, cayenne and egg yolk. Add 1/3 cup of breadcrumbs. Add onion and celery mixture and combine. Season with salt and pepper. If mixture does not hold together, add more breadcrumbs.

Place remaining 2/3 cup of breadcrumbs into a large shallow dish. Divide crab mixture into 8 portions. Form crab cakes into 2 inch rounds with 1 inch thickness. Dip the top and bottom of each crab cake into breadcrumbs. Set aside on a baking tray.

In a non-stick pan, heat remaining 1 tbsp of oil over medium high heat. Add 4 crab cakes and cook for 2-3 minutes, or until golden brown. Flip crab cakes and sear another 1 minute. Transfer crab cakes to baking sheet. Repeat with remaining cakes.

Place baking sheet in preheated oven, and bake for 6-7 minutes, or until crab cakes are heated through.

This season's necklaces are all about layered chains, little charms and mixed metals. The necklace by designer Melissa Clemente is an excellent example of the look for this season. Try these necklaces on top of a plain white T-shirt or dress and I guarantee it will look polished and pulled together. And remember: always spend a little more money on real jewelry. Some costume jewelry bought at inexpensive prices can end up wearing off on you, breaking or even carrying a strong metal odour.

Before applying fake lashes, beauty experts advise measuring and cutting them to fit.

How to fake the look

BEAUTY If cosmetic procedures like lash extensions seem too extreme and mascara just doesn't cut it, another option to creating luscious doll-like lashes is a pair of false ones.

"They give an extra oomph to the eye. They change the shape of the eye and give you a different look," explains Adi Lando, Canadian Sephora Pro Beauty Team expert.

Before applying the lashes, Lando suggests first curling your own lashes. Measure the false lashes and cut them to fit the eye.

While similar techniques are used, MAC emphasizes cleaning the lashes once they are used, by using a Q-Tip and an oil-free eye makeup remover. This will help preserve the life of the lashes and allow you to use them more than once, according to Julie St-Laurent, MAC senior artist.

"Whenever you put anything this close to the eyes, you want to make sure there won't be any bacteria growth," explains St-Laurent.

Shoppers' exclusive brand, Quo, also offers individual synthetic eyelashes and full-banded sets made of human hair.

Sometimes we forget that we need protection from the sun during the fall and winter months. Steer clear from sun damage around the eyes with sunglasses that wrap around and have thicker stems that protect you from all sides. Musical's senior year

STEVE VEALE
for Metro Canada

To paraphrase Roger Daltrey:
The kids are still all right.

"We have the best fans in the world," said Olesya Rulin, who has appeared in all three of Disney's High School Musical movies. "It's just been mind-blowing to be a part of all this."

Mind-blowing is a good way to describe the song-and-dance movie sensation that has captivated teens and preteens in North America. The saga of the thespian students attending Albuquerque's Eastside High continues tomorrow when Disney rolls out the third entry in the series.

Along with returning stars like Rulin — who plays Kelsi Nielsen — High School Musical 3: Senior

Year will feature new members of the student body, played by Justin Martin and Matt Prokop.

"We were welcomed by the regulars right away," said 18-year-old Martin, who plays Donny Dion. "The first day we all ended up playing Rock Band (on the computer) and watching movies in Ashley's (Tisdale) trailer."

"It really is like an HSM family," added Prokop. The cast had a mere five-week rehearsal schedule, and a very economic 44-day shoot, to pull High School Musical 3 together.

"That's less than half of a regular film musical," said director Kenny Ortega. "We could accomplish that because the kids were so well versed in the production."

Still, it's obvious from the three actors' laughter that they had a terrific time together. All three got long boards and followed series star Zac Efron while he skateboarded around the set. "We did get in trouble for that," admitted Prokop. "After all, if Zac sprained an ankle he wouldn't be able to do his dance numbers."

Needless to say, the boards were put in storage until shooting was wrapped. Being forced into more sedentary pastimes, the cast got a vinyl kiddie pool, pulled up some lawn chairs, soaked their feet after labourious dance numbers and enjoyed the Utah heat, where filming took place.

AC/DC

Album: Black Ice
Label: Columbia/Sony BMG
Rating: ****

ONE FORMULA DRIVES this five-member Aussie institution — rock 'n' roll. Want proof? Three songs make reference to it; one more says they're 'rocking.' Really. But would you honestly expect, 35 years on, that schoolboy-dressing blues-metal riffmeister Angus Young et al would dare reinvent themselves as power balladeers or into techno remixes or sappy country-pop? That said, this first new AC/DC effort in eight years, er, rocks with more of the energy of 1995's Back in Black, lacking many of Young's hook-laden intros, filled instead with some ZZ Top-meets-CCR swampy rhythms.

Sebastian Grainger

Album: Sebastian Grainger & The Mountains
Label: Outside
Rating: ****

SEBASTIAN GRAINGER pulls himself out of the crater left by Death From Above 1979 for his first full-length solo effort. Grainger discovers that he doesn't have to use a rubber mallet to drive home his point. There's surprisingly strong melody behind the bending walls of roughly textured rock. And he earns extra points for being able to craft an indie-rock anthem around the chorus: "I hate my friends, most of the time." Even the noise sounds sweet here.

Britney Spears case dismissed

PEOPLE A judge has dismissed a charge of driving without a licence against Britney Spears after jurors said they could not reach a verdict and a prosecutor said he would not pursue a retrial. The charge stemmed from an August 2007 collision. Prosecutors said Spears had lived in California since May 2006 and was required to get a licence. Her attorney argued she had a licence from her home state of Louisiana. REUTERS

Recipe of the day

Piquant Pasta and Tuna Salad

INGREDIENTS:

- 8 oz (250 g) pasta twists or spirals, such as cavatappi, fusilli or rotini
2 tbsp (25 ml) olive oil
1 onion, chopped
1 garlic clove, chopped
2 zucchini, thinly sliced
2 tsp (10 ml) sugar
2 tbsp (25 ml) commercially prepared red or green pesto sauce
1 tbsp (15 ml) white or red wine vinegar
1 tbsp (15 ml) capers
6 tomatoes, halved and cut in to thin wedges
1 can (6 oz/170 g) water-packed solid white tuna, drained and roughly flaked
6 black olives, pitted and halved
Garnish: Fresh flat-leaf parsley

METHOD:

1. Cook pasta according to package instructions, until al dente. Drain well, rinse with cold water, and drain again.

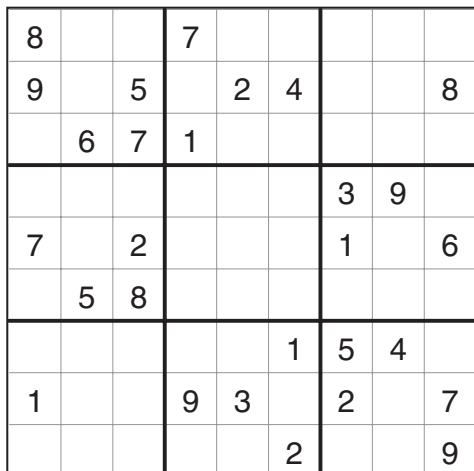

2. While pasta is cooking, heat 1 tbsp (15 ml) oil in a saucepan. Add onion and garlic, and sauté for 3 minutes, stirring often. Add remaining oil and zucchini and cook, stirring occasionally, for 3 minutes.
3. Add sugar, pesto, vinegar and capers to onion and zucchini. Heat for a few seconds, stirring until ingredients have combined to form a dressing. Stir in tomatoes, then transfer the mixture to large mixing bowl and set aside to cool.
4. Add drained pasta to the bowl. Gently mix in tuna and olives. Serve garnished with flat-leaf parsley leaves, if desired.

SUV passengers sue Lindsay

LEGAL Lindsay Lohan is being sued by three men in an SUV she drove during a car chase leading to her second DUI arrest last year, People.com reports.

The actress was "angry and aggressive" and the men "felt surprise, shock, fear and panic at Lohan's surprising and sudden act" of allegedly commandeering a car in which they happened to be sitting to chase her personal assistant through the streets of Santa Monica, Calif., according to the lawsuit.

Lohan's attorney, Ed McPherson, tells TMZ.com the lawsuit is "absurd."

The plaintiffs — Ronnie Blake, Jakon Sutter and Dante Nigro — are seeking unspecified damages in the case, filed in Superior Court in Santa Monica.

Although nobody was physically injured, their suit describes a wild, traumatic ride with Lohan allegedly angry and intoxicated as she went after the other car following a party.

"Dante and Jakon continued to implore Lohan to slow down, stating specifically that she was endangering all of their lives and that they could be killed," the lawsuit says. "Lohan refused to slow or stop, but instead responded with abusive cursing and vulgar language, including a statement that she did not care about the risk of death."

The lawsuit adds: "She also stated that because she was a celebrity she could do whatever she wants."

Following her arrest, Lohan reached a plea deal in the case and spent 84 minutes in jail for DUI.

She also was sued by the passenger in the car she allegedly chased.

Pink had nuptial doubt

RELATIONSHIPS Singer Pink reportedly knew her marriage to Carey Hart would never last, because neither of them could handle such a big commitment, female-first.co.uk reports.

Pink, who split from motocross star Hart earlier this year after two years of marriage, admits she had her doubts right from the start, even though she was the one who proposed.

"I proposed to him by holding up a sign saying 'Marry Me' when he was doing a motocross race. He nearly fell off his bike. To be honest, even when he said yes I knew there was a little part of both of us that couldn't handle being married," said the star, whose real name is Alecia Moore.

"We did it because we loved each other so much. We wanted to eat each other all the time we were together, but maybe marriage wasn't ever going to be our thing."

Pink is still struggling to come to terms with their split, adding: "I'm not over it. I love him."

Paris denies texting princes

PEOPLE Paris Hilton has phoned home from London to clear up royal romantic rumours, imdb.com reports.

The socialite called into Ryan Seacrest's radio show in Los Angeles recently to address British tabloid reports she has been caught flirting with Princes William and Harry after meeting the brothers in London.

Hilton told Seacrest she has met with William and Harry, but there's nothing to the rumours, and she's not texting love notes to either of them.

"They're very nice boys, very down to earth and sweet but there's nothing romantic going on at all," she said. "They just came up and said hello. There's no texting going on; I'm reading that I invited them to Las Vegas to a club — that never happened. I have a boyfriend (rocker Benji Madden) ...
